Diane Honer has been a Connecticut licensed Nuisance Wildlife Operator for eight years. Her goal is to solve wildlife conflicts in the best interests of people, animals and the environment. Her training in the installation of beaver flow systems was done with The Beaver Institute, Inc. Additionally, she has been a CT licensed Wildlife Rehabilitator for over 20 years.

After years in social services, Diane was drawn to wildlife through her two boys and the neighborhood children who often brought her wildlife-in-distress. This change of path has been exciting and rewarding. It has combined her love of helping people with her appreciation of wildlife.

Pond Leveler System Installation

The owners were delighted that beavers had transformed a mud patch in their backyard into a pond that attracted an abundance of diverse wildlife. Eventually the increasing level of water threatened lighting fixtures, a footbridge and septic system.

After installation level of pond is reduced one by one foot and maintained by a pipe through the dam

Note, Diane received training from the Beaver Institute as a Beaver Wetland Professional, and is a member in good standing in the Beaver Institute's International BeaverCorps Association.
